Profile

Hi, I'm Edward, I'm developing in python. What I like most about programming is providing solutions to seemingly complicated problems. I worked in a Hospital helping pry tied its institutional content and I have been studying React because I believe that Headless CMSs are the future

Experience with python

I have been working with Python and Django for around 1 year, in projects oriented to content management systems. Recently I have been trying to move to more serverless or headless CMS approach, working with ReactJs as my second main skill

I was also working in a computer rental company
